Foreword

Dear friends,

As we reflect upon the closing chapters of 2023, it is with great honour and appreciation that I extend my warmest greetings to all Member and Observer States of the Conference on Interaction and Confidence Building Measures in Asia.

On behalf of Kazakhstan's CICA Chairmanship, I am privileged to pen the foreword for this end-of-year quarterly publication – a testament to our collective efforts to promote dialogue, understanding, and cooperation in the pursuit of regional stability and security.

In the face of common challenges, the principles enshrined in the Almaty Act have continued to be a strong guiding force propelling us forward on the path of confidence-building and collaboration across the unique format and geography of the Conference.

Over the past year, our forum has advanced on the path towards becoming a full-fledged regional international organisation in accordance with the Astana Statement on CICA Transformation, and continued to provide an effective and vital multilateral platform for mutually beneficial interaction in Asia and beyond.

Most recently, the Kazakh Chairmanship presided over the informal Ministerial Council Meeting in New York City in September 2023 that saw the adoption of the landmark Road Map for CICA Transformation, covering the elaboration of a Charter, financial and budgetary reform, improvement of the regulatory framework, and strengthening the human resources capacity of the Secretariat, among other important priorities.

In the coming year, Kazakhstan will advance the implementation of its initiatives in the economic, environmental, and human dimensions, namely the establishment of the Council on Sustainable Connectivity, transformation of the Finance Summit into a permanent platform, and creation of the CICA Partnership Network of Leading Universities.

I am confident that with the constructive support of the CICA Member States, these practical steps will strengthen the fabric of our regional community, laying the foundation for a more resilient and interconnected Eurasia.

We also count on the active participation of all delegations in vibrant exchanges of ideas, experiences, and best practices, including vis-à-vis upcoming events such as the CICA High-Level Environmental Conference and the Meeting of Volunteer Movement Leaders, to be held in Astana in 2024.

The Kazakh Chairmanship remains committed to the principles of openness, transparency, and mutual respect that define the essence of the CICA.

As we turn the page to the New Year, let us carry forward the momentum generated by our collective endeavours, forging ahead with renewed vigour and optimism.

May 2024 bring prosperity, progress, and fruitful collaborations for the Conference on Interaction and Confidence Building Measures in Asia.

Sincerely,

Murat NURTLEU

The two sides discussed preparation efforts for the Conference of Ministers of CICA Member States on Environmental Issues, an event proposed by President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev during the Sixth CICA Summit on 13 October 2022.

Ambassador Sarybay highlighted that the CICA region, covering 90% of Asia, is subject to various climatic phenomena, and stressed the importance of collaboration in the environmental dimension of the CICA agenda. The Secretary General also emphasized that one of the key outcomes of the Conference could be a recommendation on the creation of the CICA Environmental Council.

Ambassador Sarybay also shared information about the functionalities of CICA's permanent consultative and advisory bodies such as the Youth Council, Business Council, and Think Tank Forum.

Minister Nyssanbayev emphasized the relevance of resolving regional environmental issues and expressed his readiness to work closely with CICA to organize the Conference at a high level in August 2024.

The parties noted the progress achieved in developing the draft concept of the event following two online consultations with CICA Member States coordinating activities in the CICA environmental dimension, and agreed to continue working together in this direction.

CICA experts discuss cooperation in digital forensics

The CICA online seminar on digital forensics was held on 2-3 October 2023. The event was organized by Russia, which coordinates the implementation of confidence building measures in the area of “Security of and in the use of ICTs”. The seminar brought together more than 30 representatives from 17 CICA Member States, experts from the CICA Secretariat and the UNODC.

In her welcoming address, CICA Deputy Secretary General Ms. Chi Fang expressed gratitude to the Russian organizers of the seminar for the consistent implementation of confidence building measures in the area of ICT security in the spirit of the CICA Leaders' Statement on cooperation in the relevant field of 2022. Ms. Chi Fang also stressed that CICA acts as an appropriate regional platform for the exchange of experience and convergence of approaches to ensuring the security of ICTs based on universally recognized principles of international law, primarily the UN Charter.

The Deputy Secretary General noted with satisfaction that the Russian-Chinese coordination of interaction in the field of ICT security has been extended until 2025. She expressed hope for holding a number of thematic seminars, conferences and trainings in the coming period with the broad participation of CICA Member States.

During the two-day seminar, the participants reviewed the history and prospects of the development of digital forensics, some aspects and problematic issues of international cooperation in this field, and studied the relevant national experience of individual Member States. An important issue on the agenda was data security and protection. Special attention was paid to the problems of electronic and digital evidence in the context of operational, search-related and investigative measures, as well as administrative and criminal records management.

“Security of and in the use of ICTs” was included in the updated CICA Catalogue of Confidence Building Measures in 2021 and remains an important priority area of interaction among the Member States. In August 2022, Russia and China organized an online workshop on sustainable and secure development of the Internet.

The international seminar, organized under the auspices of CICA, became an important contribution to the practical interaction of the Member States within the annual plan of implementation of CICA confidence building measures.

CICA Secretary General addresses VI International Transport and Logistics Business Forum “New Silk Way”

Ambassador Kairat Sarybay, Secretary General of the Conference on Interaction and Confidence Building Measures in Asia (CICA), delivered a statement at the VI International Transport and Logistics Business Forum “New Silk Way” held in Astana, Kazakhstan.

In his address, Ambassador Sarybay emphasized the vital role of CICA as a pan-Asian organization comprising 28 Member States, spanning from the Pacific Ocean to the Mediterranean Sea and from the Arctic Ocean to the Indian Ocean.

He highlighted that the development of secure and efficient transport corridor systems, trade, and investment align naturally with the CICA Catalogue of Confidence Building Measures as priority areas within the Economic dimension of interaction among Member States. Given the growing importance of Asia in the global market for goods and services, coupled with modern challenges and threats related to epidemiological security, changes in the geopolitical landscape, and heightened competition among the world's leading economies, the significance of these areas is set to escalate.

In this context, CICA SG Kairat Sarybay mentioned that President of Kazakhstan Kassym-Jomart Tokayev initiated the establishment of the CICA Council on Sustainable Connectivity during the Sixth CICA Summit. He noted that Asia boasts numerous concepts and projects related to connectivity, such as Belt and Road Initiative, Middle Corridor, Regional Connectivity of Central and South Asia, among others. At the opening of the 78th session of the UN General Assembly this September, many visions of Asian route corridors were presented, including by extra-regional players. He underscored the importance of Asia having its own vision for synergizing these connectivity projects and developing the transit, transport, and logistics potential of the region. Ambassador Sarybay further highlighted that the CICA platform is well-suited for developing a consolidated approach among its Member States toward the advancement of transport and logistics connectivity in Asia while strengthening its role in the global economy.

Furthermore, Ambassador Sarybay conveyed that the upcoming seventh plenary meeting of the CICA Business Council, scheduled to be held under the chairmanship of Atameken National Chamber of Entrepreneurs in 2024, will include discussions on various pertinent topics. These include addressing new challenges and threats in logistics and infrastructure management, exploring innovative solutions in this domain, harnessing the power of artificial intelligence for the development of small and medium enterprises, expanding cross-border trade, prioritizing sustainable development in small and medium enterprises, and empowering women in business.

CICA Secretary General Kairat Sarybay's participation in the VI International Transport and Logistics Business Forum “New Silk Way” serves as a testament to CICA's commitment to fostering cooperation, connectivity, and sustainable development across the Asian continent and beyond.

Kazakhstan highlights role of CICA as an important partner of the UN in promoting peace and security

On 20 October 2023, the Permanent Representative of Kazakhstan to the United Nations Akan Rakhmetullin delivered an address at the United Nations Security Council (UNSC) open debate on “Maintenance of international peace and security: Contributions of regional mechanisms for peace and security” in New York.

The Kazakh Permanent Representative emphasized the importance of regional and sub-regional organizations in understanding the root causes of conflict and fostering sustainable peace and security worldwide.

Kazakhstan took the opportunity to highlight the emerging role of the Conference on Interaction and Confidence-Building Measures in Asia (CICA), which it had established in 1992, as an essential partner of the United Nations. The principles enshrined in CICA's founding document, the Almaty Act, were noted to converge with those of the UN Charter, emphasizing respect for sovereign equality, territorial integrity, peaceful conflict resolution, and economic, social, and cultural cooperation.

Furthermore, Akan Rakhmetullin underscored the significance of the Catalogue of Confidence Building Measures within CICA. This document is continually updated to address emerging tensions, encompassing issues like epidemiological security, climate change, information and communication technology, money laundering, and counterterrorism, among others. This alignment in goals and direction between CICA and the UN was deemed mutually reinforcing.

A distinctive feature of CICA lies in its membership, which unites 28 countries across a vast territory from the Pacific to the Mediterranean and from the Urals to the Indian Ocean. Notably, CICA is the only pan-Asian organization where Israel and Palestine hold full and equal membership, even as it bonds together countries with no diplomatic relations.

The Kazakh Permanent Representative also noted the growing engagement of member states as a positive force in CICA's transformation into a full-fledged international organization capable of contributing to continental mediation and peace-making. The recent endorsement of the Road Map for CICA Transformation with eight areas of reforms at the CICA Ministerial Council meeting in New York on 21 September was seen as a significant step in this direction.

In conclusion, Akan Rakhmetullin stressed the importance of the dynamic synergy between the UN system and regional organizations, particularly with pan-continental organizations like CICA.

High-level SCO meeting was held in person for the first time since 2019 after a break due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The next 23rd SCO CHG meeting is scheduled for 2024 and will be held in the Islamic Republic of Pakistan.

The event was hosted by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Belarus.

In his address to the high-level plenary session, Ambassador Kairat Sarybay focused on the creation of new inter-State associations in Eurasia that consider security in a much broader perspective than the purely military-political dimension. There is a growing realization that there can be no security without economic and social development, the resolution of humanitarian issues, and the search for answers to questions of a civilizational and cultural nature. The Secretary General also highlighted the special role of CICA as a unique multilateral platform for pan-Asian political dialogue based on inclusiveness and confidence building, which is particularly important in the context of the global security crisis.

To date, CICA has established cooperation and partnership with eleven international organizations and granted observer status to nine states. Distinguished Chair,
Ladies and gentlemen,

It is my pleasure to participate in this forum session, addressing such a distinguished audience. I extend my gratitude to the Subregional Office for North and Central Asia (SONCA) and the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) for organizing this event.

I am honored to represent CICA, the Conference on Interaction and Confidence-Building Measures in Asia. CICA is a unique consensus-based multilateral platform dedicated to enhancing cooperation for the promotion of peace, security, and stability in Asia. Today, CICA brings together 28 Member States, covering 90% of Asia's territory and half of the world's population.

CICA provides an equal opportunity for all its Members, with diverse political, economic, social, and cultural backgrounds, to exchange ideas, knowledge, and best practices, collaborate on beneficial initiatives, and make decisions based on mutual agreement. By facilitating the voluntary implementation of specific and result-oriented confidence building measures (CBMs), CICA contributes to the achievement of the goals of SDG 17. This is achieved by building trust, strengthening peace and security, and fostering economic growth and sustainable development. CICA's CBMs encompass five dimensions of cooperation: military-political, new threats and challenges, economic, environmental, and human dimensions. In this manner, CICA is interconnected with SDG 17 in their shared mission to promote collaboration and partnerships as essential tools for addressing global challenges and regional stability. As an example, CICA offers an ideal platform for its Member States to collaborate on environmental issues and work towards sustainable solutions within the CICA environmental dimension. Sustainable development, environmental protection, and natural disaster management are the priority areas of this dimension. To combat, prevent, and mitigate climatic challenges, the Member States organize various events such as seminars, workshops, online training, and expert meetings. These events raise awareness among the Member States and provide opportunities to share best practices and improve synergies among each other. For instance, in the CICA workshop on «Ecosystem Restoration in the Context of Climate and other Vulnerability» organized by Bangladesh in July 2023, participating countries shared their best practices and solutions aligned with their sustainable development goals.

Dear participants,

During the Sixth CICA Summit in October 2022 in Astana, our heads of state and government launched the CICA Transformation process into a full-fledged regional international organization. At this Summit, President of Kazakhstan Kassym-Jomart Tokayev proposed strengthening cooperation in the environmental dimension by hosting a High-level Environmental Conference in Astana in 2024. This conference aims to identify environmental issues and develop coordinated solutions under the auspices of CICA.

By organizing such a high-level conference, the CICA platform will underscore its commitment to environmental protection and sustainable development. Asia, as a continent with a large population, robust economic growth, and geographical diversity, faces a significant challenge in incorporating various approaches to address climatic and environmental challenges. Furthermore, during the Sixth CICA Summit, the Kazakh Chairmanship initiated the establishment of the CICA Council on Sustainable Connectivity to tackle new challenges in the global economy, including supply chain issues, and address the underdeveloped connectivity among CICA Member States.

Sustainable development is a fundamental concept with the power to shape our future. A correct understanding of sustainability is crucial to achieving sustainable development goals. SDGs remind us that the challenges we face are global in nature, and their achievement requires true cooperation, solidarity, and partnership.

The United Nations Headquarters hosted a significant side event on 22 September 2023, under the title «The United Nations, CICA, and Regional Organizations: Collaborative Support for the SDGs.» This gathering, coordinated by the Kazakh Chairmanship of the Conference on Interaction and Confidence Building Measures in Asia in conjunction with the CICA Secretariat, represented another important achievement in the enduring and diverse partnership between the UN and CICA. Its primary objective was to foster cooperation and coordination between these two organizations in their efforts to advance sustainable development.

Finally, CICA is planning to hold a side event, on the margins of the Eightieth Commission session of ESCAP in 2024, under the theme «Leveraging Digital Innovation for Sustainable Development in Asia and the Pacific». This side event represents a significant step forward in fostering dialogue, collaboration, and innovation to address the pressing challenges and opportunities of our time.

I would like to express my gratitude once again to the organizers for this productive forum.
